

Memories of Snow

Saturday afternoon, January 6: Enough snow for you yet? This is one time you most probably do have spare time to write.

First, record some of your experiences this weekend such as the sound of a shovel scraping the driveway, the silence of the snow at night, the smell of snow-soaked hats and gloves and the logistics of re-arranging plans.

Second, think back over your life and write about at least one other time you have been immersed in snow. Remember: dialogue, five senses, voice, non-linear narrative, lessons learned and anything else you would care to throw in. Stay warm.
